ON THE GALLOWS.

John Greenwall Hanged for the Murder of Lyman S. Weeks.

The Execution in Raymond Street Jall at 7.24 This Morning.

Failure of the Condemned Man's Nerve at the Last Moment.

His Last Utterance Was a Protest of His Innocence.

Story of the Crime for Which His Life Was Forfeited.

John Greenwall, convicted of the murder of Lyman S. Weeks, was hanged at 7.24 o'clock this morning, in the Raymond Street Jail, Brooklyn. His neck was broken and be was pronounced dead in seven minutes.

At 7.22 he turned his back on his cell in the southern corridor and walked in the sombre procession to the gallows.

The short, dumpy figure of "Joe" Atkinso led the way. Next came Greenwall, escorted by the Catholic priests, Fathers O'Hara and Mo-Namara, and lastly came Under Sheriff Taylor and his deputy. THE CHASTLY SCENE OF DEATH.

The scene was a most impressive one. The gas was lighted throughout the big building. sparrows twittered up in the eaves under the rafters, and every one of the four hundred and nity prisoners had his face pressed close to the bars of his cell, although not one of them could catch even a glimpse of the scene of execution. They could hear the dull sound made by the axe, though, as it severed the rope which dropped the weight that jerked the unfortunate man into eternity, and it caused more than one of them to groan involuntarily. While Greenwall walked to his doom the priest chanted the Litany for the dying, and he responded, bowing devoutly at each mention of the name of "Jesus."

UNDER THE GALLOWS. Arriving at the gallows, he stepped coolly to his place under the rope, while the priests stood ctly in front of him and a litany more rapidly.

When under the gallows Greenwall ceased praying aloud. His reason seemed to be leaving His face turned ghastly pale. His eyes twitched nervon ly and rolled about in his head,

He pressed his lips closely together. One of the priests, seeing his fearful agitation, stepped up to him and pressed a silver crucifix to his lips. He kissed it eagerly, and when the priest made a motion to withdraw it he reached his head out after it and seemed loath to take his lips from the figure of Christ being cructfied.

Meantime Atkinson was busy pinioning his less and arranging the black cap.
THE ACT OF DEATH.

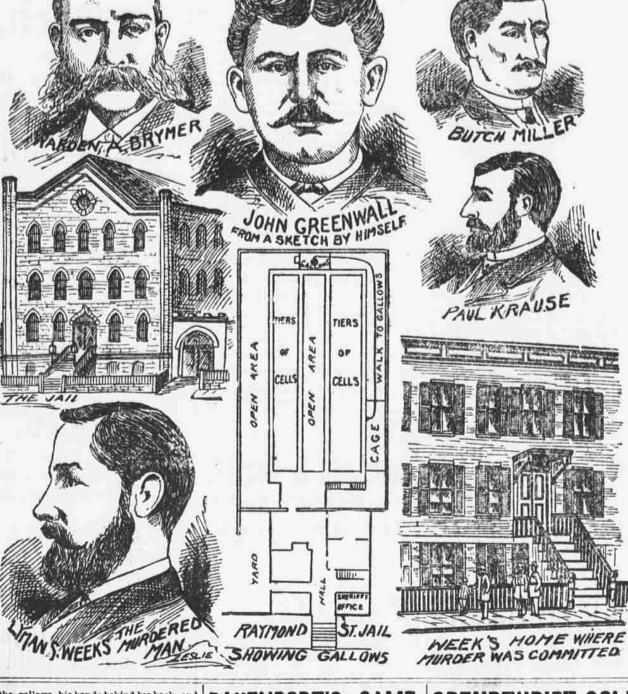

As he was pulling the ghastly hood down on the man's face, after connecting the noose and rope. Greenwall awayed ever so slightly and might have fallen only that the sturdy little hangman grasped him firmly by the coat-collar with one hand, while he reached the other out and gave the signal of death by pounding with his chubby fist on the partition which concealed from view the weight and the man whose business it was to cut the rope.

Atkinson's knuckles sounded loud and disfinet, and a second after he rapped them on the board the cound of an axe rang throughout the iail and Greenwall flew aloft.

He went up nearly to the cross-beam, and dropped like a stuffed figure thrown out of a

Many of those present had never witnessed a hanging before, and they turned away shuddering The body swung around and back again and then the muscular contortions began. The priests were on their knees on the flagged floor, in their black robes, praying loud and earnestly. Their voices sounded hollow and far of the gallows, his hands behind his back, and one foot crossing the other. This is the favorite position he assumes after successfully hanging a man, HIS CRIME WAS EXPIATED.

At 7.41 County Physician A. W. Smith pro-mounced Greenwall dead. He said that the unfortunate man could not have suffered a par-About 8 o'clock the body was lowered into the coffin and taken to Undertaker Haffer's, from whence it was sent to the Holy Cross Cemetery, at Flatbush, L. I.

waived the seading of the warrant.

At 7.20 a. M. Under Sheriff Taylor and his fury went to Greenwall's cell to take him forth to execution. Taylor started to read the death-warrant, but his heart failed him, and he said:

"Roess it is not necessary to read all this."

"No," replied Greenwall, "it is not necessary, I know i have to die, and that is enough; but I want to say before God I am not guilty. I did not commit that murder."

Every one who heard him believed him. His manner was as sincere that no one could donly him, but the blood of Lyman's. Weeks cried out for vengeance, and the law supplied the victim. WAIVED THE READING OF THE WARRANT.

NERVY TILL THE LAST MOMENT.

Up to the moment of his execution Greenwall displayed the most wonderful nerve.

He woke of his own accord at 4 o'clock, just as Warden Brymer was entering his cell.

'Ah. good morning, Warden. How is it? Cold out?" he inquired, vivaciously.

'No, not very cold: but how do you feel rourself?" said the Warden.

'I never feit better in my life. I don't believe I ever cared so much for hile before as I do this morning. he added, caroestly.

He walked out into the corridor and saluted the death-watch. He peered up anxionsly through one of the big iron-grated windows to get a glimpse of the sky.

'It is not daylight vet, but I might as well make the most of my time now," he remarked.

After a short walk up and down the corridor he went to the improvised chapel near his cell and kuelt in prayer.

Father O'Hara reached the jail at 5 o'clock, and hurried at once to Greenwall's side. The law's victim and his spiritual adviser shook hands warmly and then kneit to pray together. NEBVY TILL THE LAST MOMENT.

HIS LAST COMMUNION. His Last COMMUNION.

Father O'Hara celebrated mass at 5.30 o'clock and Greenwall received his last communion. The service was finished a few minutes after 6 a. m., and then Greenwall returned to his cell to eat his breakfast of roast chicken, hot rolls, boiled eggs and coffee.

It was so bitterly coid outside that Inspector McLaughlin asked permission to house his policemen for a few minutes in the jail, which permission was readily granted, and about two hundred of them filed in in single file.

The steady tramp, tramp of their feet as they marched awoke everybody in the jail. Green-wall heard the sound and asked what it meant. He was told, and then made a little joke, saying:

Well, it's a good many policemen to have behind prison bars. I was afraid they came for fear I would try and escape."

A few minutes later Joe Atkinson and his two assistants entered the jail, and preparations for the forthcoming event were hurried by him in his usual impetuous fashion.

At 7 o clock Father McNamara strived and from that time until the end Greenwall and the Wants to Be Chief Commissioner of The Famous Stallion Brings $14,000 at American Immigration.

Little John L Davenport, who for years has manipulated elections in this city in the interest of Republican candidates, is now seeking a reward for his years of political activity.

Mr. Davenport wants to be the autocrat who will centrol the question of immigration at every port on the Atlantic cosst, and he thinks win control the destine of immigration at every port on the Atlantic coast, and he thinks he sees his opportunity to attain this send.

Until this year the Remublicans had controlled the Emigration Commission and its patronage, but it has now fallen into the hands of the Democrats, and Gov. Hill's yeto power will keep it there, so far as State legislation is concerned.

The Republicans have Congress and the National executive, however, and it is through them that Davenport expects to gain his end.

He is in Washington now attempting to secure the passage of a law providing for Federal control of immigration, with a Chief Commissioner to control all patronage and to be Johnny Davenport, if Johnny knows himself.

Emigration Commissioner Stephenson said today that he thinks Davenport's bill is likely to become a law, and that if it does, he has no doubt that Davenport will be the Chief Commissioner.

LANNON CALLED THE FIGHT A DRAW.

McAuliffe Had the Best of the Fifteen-Round Battle with Daly. ISPECIAL TO THE WORLD. 1

Boston, Dec. 5 .- After fifteen rounds of rather tame fighting the lightweight battle between Jack McAuliffe, of Williamsburg, N. Y., and Mike Daly, of Bangor, Me., before the Parnell Athletic Club, was declared a draw by the referee, Joe Launon. Most of the big crowd of sports present thought McAuliffe had the best of the battle. but the advantage was not sufficient to warrant the referee in deciding against the Bangor man. There was a painful delay over the selection of a referee. John L. Sullivan had declined to act, and the McAuliffe party wanted Jere Dunn. Dunn was not acceptable to Daly, and after much wrangling the principals agreed on Joe Lannon. The police were present, and at the end of fifteen rounds the fight was declared drawn.

The Baby Hippopotamus Breathes His A Long Island Factory Where Car Horses Last in Central Park.

Congestion of the Lungs Ends His Newtown's Populace Is Indignant Promising Career.

The Sad News Kept Secret from the No Law Against Using Horse Flesh, but Delicate Mother.

DIED.

Baby Murphy, child of Caliph and Fatima Murphy, of Weeping hearts will throb in the breasts of anouncement.

Baby, who brought gladness to the hearts of Caliph and Fatima Murphy, and sweetest consolation to Crowley-less Jake Cook, lived but four days, and almost before Dr. Conklingot over his confusion at aunouncing the newcomer as a "daughter" when he should have said "son" it gave up its little life.

From the first, the dear little thing seemed too frail, too beautiful for this world, and when in the still watches of Wednesday night, the faintest little baby cough was heard by Nurse Tom Donohue, the sound fell like a knell upon in the still watches of Weinesday right, the faintest little baby cough was heard by Nurse Tom Donohne, the sound fell like a knell upon his cars.

The family physician, Dr. Conklin, was hastily summoned, and he did all that medical skill could do in his efforts to combat the attack pneumonia had made upon the helpless baby hippopotamus as he lay in the sing little bed prepared for him by his faithful nurse.

Congestion of the lungs is a fearful thing even when it attacks a strong, sturdy constitution, and when the object of its ruthlessness is but a poor, weak little babe, weighing but sixty-live pounds, the result is inevitable.

Baby faded away, dying at 4 o'clock this morning, surrounded by a lew of those to whom he had become so dear.

Jake Cook and Tom Donohue wept unbidden tears, and though paby's death was painless and perfectly peaceful, the scene, as the little sufferer turned his round, hazel eyes upon Dr. Conklin, as if in pleading, and obened his little mouth, as if yearning to awallow one of his nor-es, was indeed affecting.

Ishy had been separated from his mother, for fear she might trample his life out with her 4,000 pounds weight, and the fact of baby's death has been kept from her, as well as from Calinh, her lather. It is feared that the news might throw Mrs. Murphy into a decline.

Prof. Jenness Richardson, of the Museum of Natural History, made an autopsy this morning revealing the fact that the babe's lungs were badly congested.

Beby was 3 feet 7½ inches long from the tip of its blunt nose to the little stump tail.

Prof. Richardson, who endeared himself to the heart of every child—and lots of grown folks, too—by so successfully preserving the dear form and angelic smile of Mr. Crowley, will endeavour to taxidermize the pink little love who died so soon, and Dr. Spitzka is to have his spinal cord for scientific study. There will be no funeral.

O'BRIEN IS NOT A MYTH.

Important Evidence by Judge Kelly in the Smyth Perjury Hearing.

In the examination of William L. Smyth. charged with perjury in the Dock Department investigation, at the Tombs Court to-day, ex-Civil Justice. William H. Kelly's testimony proved conclusively that the famous Thos. O'Brien was not a night.

The Judge testified that he had known O'Brien for five years and described him as follows:

He is about forty-seven years old, small of stature, brown mustache, dark hair and light gray eyes.

Witness said that O'Brien was a veteran of the war and had received a terrible wound while at the front; that he was wearing a metal piste embedded in his head as the result of the wound.

O'Brien was also described as a man of good character and intelligence. He was said to be in the patent medicine business. The witness declined to give O'Brien's address or place of business.

"He is my client," remarked the ex-Judge,
"and I have reasons for refusing testate his residence. He asked me to keep his residence a residence. He asked me to keep his residence a secret."

"How long has he been your client?" was asked by Mr. Coleman.

"For over five years."

"Did O'Brien sign the lease for the dock?"

"He did, in my private office in the Sixth District Civil Court."

Judge Kelly said he would give O'Brien's residence if the Court so desired, but Judge Hogan said that the witness need not give it.

meat as a desirable dainty, the palates of New-town's authorities on cuisine have not yet been concated to that degree which craves equine entrees. In their own words, "Beef is good enough for them."

Naturally enough Town Clerk William O'Gor-man's callers to-day all had something to say against the "horse sausages," and the genial clerk took especial delight in springing a little loke on every one who mentioned the sublect: "I have never had the pleasure of eating a horse" bologna sausage, but I am told they are a most deliction bird, and I have, therefore, ordered a samutuous repast of them for the Beard of Health's regalement when they meet to-morrow."

ordered a summinous repast of them for the Beard of Health's regalement when they meet to-morrow."

Then, growing more serious, he explained to an Evesting wonth reporter how the discovery that Mr. Moyer was manufacturing equine bolognas of a superior grade came about.

Henry Mover has a rameage factory on Johnson avenue, near Maiden lane, and also a pont, which is used for watering stock and other farm Surposes. Neighbors complained to the Health Officer, Dr. Wickham, that the refuse from the factory had a mraminated the water and rendered it officers and unit for use.

Fir. Wickham immediately began an investigation, and while inspecting the factory was surprised to find large pieces of horseflesh hanging about the building, evidently awaiting their turn to be stuffed into sausages.

The proprietor himself admitted that he made sausages of horseflesh and didn't know of any law to prevent him.

Dr. Wickham also takes this view of the matter and thinks nothing can be done about it so long as the meat is not diseased.

On the premises the dector discovered an aged horse, calmly awaiting the chopping machine. Life seemed a burden to him: one of his hind legs was swollen to nearly three times its natural size.

This may furnish an inkling of the ultimate.

This may furnish an inkling of the ultimate fate of New York's worn-out and decrept sarface-ear horses.

To-morrow morning the Newtonn Board of Health will hear the complaints against Mr.

Meyer's factory.

One of the interested callers on Town Clerk Cornan, who is also Clerk of the Board of Health, said:

'If there is no law against making sausages out of horse flesh there ought to be, and the Board of Health onght to make such an ordinance.' unities."
What action the Board would take in the matter is a matter of conjecture.

The Career of the Dead Man Interwoven With the Country's History.

Touching Scenes of His Sick-Room and the Death-Chamber.

[SPICIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD, ? NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 6. - After a weary illness of several weeks, during which strength and hope alternated fitfully with weakness and despair, Jefferson Davis has passed into rest. He die I three-quarters of an hour after midnight.

For the three days previous he had seemed to be improving steadily, but yesterday afternoon he was thrown back by a chill and fever, and the doctors made the prediction, which was sadly verified, that he would not live the night

Mr. Davis died at the residence of his life-lons friend. J. U. Payne. The sufferer had not always shared in the hopeful views of those about him as to his improvement, but felt so much better yesterday morning that he had to admit the change himself, and made a jocular remark to Mr. Payne about being compelled to agree with his doctors. The chill which again prostrated him followed this hopeful day, coming on at 6 o'clock, scarcely two hours after Mrs. Davis had sent to her husband's friends cheering reports of his

From the time of this attack until the minute when he passed away Mr. Davis's sinking, though gradual, was plainly perceptible and unchecked.

The long sickness had so weakened his vital forces that he could not again recuperate, even emporarily. The last words of the venerable sufferer were spoken shortly after 7 o'clock, more than five hours before his death. They came in response to his wife's centle urging that he take the dose of medicine left for him by his physician.

He had swallowed a portion of it, but waved the rest gently away.
"Tray excuse me," he whispered, as Mrs.

Davis continued her gentle pleading. Then as the minutes passed into hours, he lay metly on his bed clasping and tenderly caress ing, from time to time, the hand of his wife, There was no longer hope. Nothing was left but waiting for the Presence so near at hand. I'y 10,30 o'clock the tide of life had sunk so low that messengers were hurriedly sent to call those whose places were in the chamber which death was about to enter.

An hour later all who could be there were gathered at the bedside of the dying man. These persons included, besides the faithful wife, whose hand was still clasped in that of her husband, Doctors Chaille and Bickham, Associate Justice Fenner and wife, Miss Nannie mith, who is the grandniece of Mr. Davis;

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Farrar. When the end came the passing away was as gentle as the falling into sleep of a tired child. Mr. Davis's right cheek lay upon his open

He had released his wife's hand and his own left hand lay over his breast.

The wife bent over the bedside to catch the last faint breath of the dying dear one, and when it came and passed and she realized that there was no longer any call for the tender care and wifely solicitude so constantly exercised in the weeks of her husband's illness her forced composure gave way and she was utterly pros-

To her, then, was devoted the care of the physicians who had first sorrowfully watched the adverse issue of their brave struggle against mighty odds.

This morning Mrs. Davis was resting quietly. while her husband lay in his death chamber, his face caim and, though worn by his long illness, showing severely a trace of the suffering which had at times been his.

The physicians ascribe the fatal termination of their patient's illness to a sudden return of the malarial affections which, with a bronchtal
